AHE – over 30 years of experience

Who are we?

Our mission is to educate young minds and cultivate creativity.

Our student therefore receives what they would learn at other universities, as well as what can be found only with us — resources of creativity. Creativity is a purely human competence, an attitude, and a potential for action. A creative attitude cannot be bought or sold, because it is not a commodity, but it can be developed and expanded. At our Academy, new technologies are created, followed by start-ups, and then well-prospering business ventures founded and run by students. It is a place where our students build their very first factory.

We value International cooperation

12 fields of studies

offered for Erasmus+ students

Each course provides unique opportunities to learn from highly qualified staff and cooperate with students from Poland as well as International students.

We create partnerships that benefit all and last for years.

100 technological partners

Contact with technological partners makes it possible to introduce into study programs and specializations issues that are particularly important from an expert perspective—that is, from the business point of view. Cooperation with local partners is also extremely valuable, as their proximity to the university and fast decision-making processes allow them to provide almost immediate feedback on changing needs within their industry.

Pedagogy

The Pedagogy programme at AHE prepares students for professional work in education, social care and developmental support. It combines solid theoretical foundations with practical training, workshops and project-based learning. Students develop skills in communication, diagnostics, educational planning and creative work with children, youth and adults.

AHE offers modern teaching facilities, including specialised classrooms and spaces adapted for creative and therapeutic work. Strong emphasis is placed on reflective practice, individual approach to learners and cooperation with educational institutions, which allows students to gain valuable professional experience during their studies.

Dance

The Dance programme at AHE is a unique combination of artistic training, choreography and pedagogical education. Students develop technical skills in various dance styles, choreography, improvisation and stage performance.

AHE offers professional dance studios, adapted rehearsal spaces and access to stage facilities. The programme emphasizes creative independence, interdisciplinary projects and cooperation with artists from different fields. Graduates are prepared for careers as dancers, choreographers, dance educators and cultural animators, supported by strong practical experience and artistic development.

Law

The Law programme at AHE provides comprehensive education in legal theory and practice, preparing students for various legal professions. The curriculum covers civil, criminal, administrative, commercial and international law, supported by case studies and practical legal analysis, including emphasis on EU law.

Students benefit from access to modern lecture halls, legal databases and interactive teaching methods. AHE emphasises practical skills such as legal reasoning, argumentation and interpretation of legal texts, as well as ethical responsibility. Cooperation with legal practitioners and institutions allows students to better understand real legal challenges and professional standards.

Tourism and Recreation

Tourism and Recreation at AHE is designed for students interested in travel, leisure management and active lifestyles. The programme combines knowledge of tourism economics, cultural heritage, recreation planning and event organisation.

AHE offers a practical approach to education, including project work, field activities and cooperation with tourism and recreation institutions. Students learn how to design tourism products, manage leisure activities and promote sustainable tourism. The multicultural and creative environment of AHE supports the development of communication skills and openness to global trends in tourism.

Journalism, Media, Culture

The Journalism programme at AHE focuses on modern media, communication strategies and practical journalistic skills. Students learn how to create content for press, radio, television and digital media, working with professional recording equipment and multimedia tools.

AHE provides access to media studios and encourages students to develop their own journalistic projects. The programme emphasizes critical thinking, ethical responsibility and creative expression. Close contact with experienced media professionals helps students understand contemporary challenges of journalism and build strong professional portfolios.

Culture Studies

Cultural Studies at AHE offers an interdisciplinary approach to understanding contemporary culture, art, media and social phenomena. Students explore cultural processes, creative industries, popular culture and heritage management.

The programme benefits from AHE's strong artistic and creative profile, access to cultural events, exhibitions and interdisciplinary projects. Students develop analytical, organisational and creative skills, preparing them for work in cultural institutions, media, NGOs and creative sectors.

Management

The Management programme at AHE prepares students for leadership roles in business, culture and public institutions. It combines knowledge of economics, marketing, project management and entrepreneurship.

Students develop practical skills through case studies, simulations and team projects. AHE emphasizes creativity, strategic thinking and adaptability to changing market conditions. The interdisciplinary environment of the university allows students to connect management skills with culture, media and creative industries.

Students benefit also from attending classes with International Students representing experience from all around the globe.

Political Science

Political Science at AHE offers a comprehensive understanding of political systems, international relations and social processes. Students analyse contemporary political challenges, public policy and global trends.

The programme encourages critical thinking, debate and independent research. Thanks to an interdisciplinary academic environment and experienced lecturers, students gain analytical and communication skills essential for careers in public administration, media, NGOs and international organisations.

Graphics

The Graphic Design programme at AHE in Łódź is a practice-oriented course that combines artistic creativity with modern digital technologies. Students work with professional graphic software, photography equipment and multimedia tools in well-equipped studios and computer labs. The programme focuses on visual communication, branding, digital illustration, photography, animation and design for print and digital media.

AHE places strong emphasis on individual artistic development, portfolio building and real-world projects. Thanks to small study groups and close cooperation with experienced lecturers who are active designers and artists, students gain practical skills and confidence needed to enter the creative industries.

Computer Science

Computer Science at AHE is a modern programme focused on practical IT skills and up-to-date technologies. Students learn programming, software development, databases, web technologies and IT systems management.

AHE offers well-equipped computer labs and project-based learning, allowing students to work on real programming tasks. The programme supports creativity, problem-solving and teamwork, preparing graduates for dynamic careers in the IT sector and further technological development.

English Studies

The English Philology programme at AHE combines advanced language education with cultural, literary and communication studies. Students develop high-level language proficiency, translation skills and intercultural competence.

Classes are conducted in modern language laboratories and small groups, ensuring an individual approach to learning. AHE emphasises practical language use, creative projects and professional communication, preparing graduates for careers in education, translation, international business and cultural institutions.
